

Question:

Would including the values for the individual percentages and the following conditional loops in each 'if' statement be considered more abstraction?