Question:

Is it easier to deal with type differences through static_cast<>() or promotion/demotion of values, and how do you best keep track of type differences?